teacher information

I have... Who has? Is a great game to practice a variety of skills! This version focuses on the prefixes: pre, re, un, and im.

This game contains 36 cards.

There are no specific start or end cards. My students made this suggestion to me. They didn't like being dealt the start or end cards because they felt like they didn't get a chance to play!

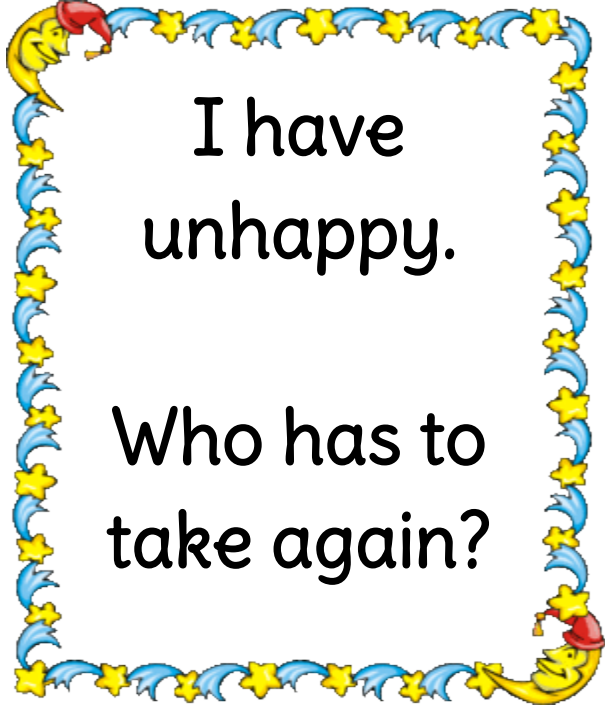

directions

Pass out one card to each student. Some students may have more than one card or share a card depending on how many students are in your game.

I pick a student out of my name bin and they begin playing. That student reads his or her card aloud.

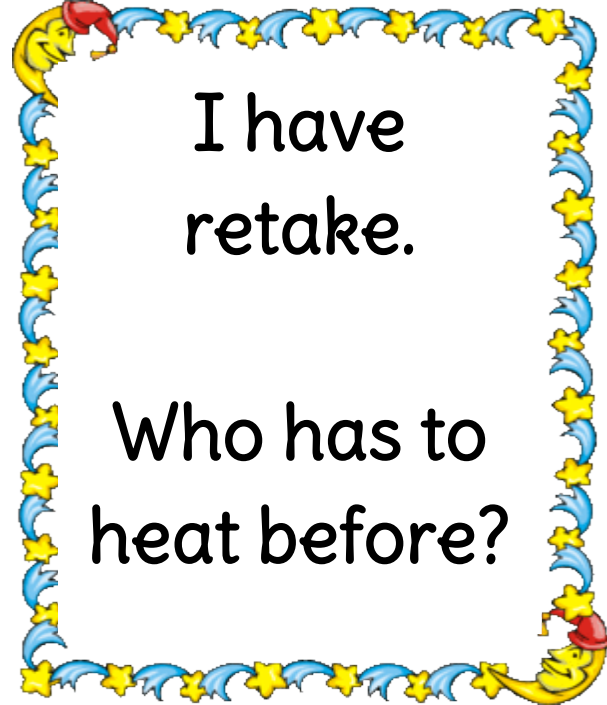

The student who has the answer to the problem will say, "I have ___, who has ___?" The play continues until all cards have been read.

The first person who read their card aloud will also be the last to answer "I have___".
